Lib Dem leader calls for council to enforce smoke alarm legislation

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

LIVES are being put at risk by Haringey Council's failure to fine landlords who have not fitted smoke alarms to the properties they rent out, it has been claimed.

The Liberal Democrat opposition on the Labour-run local authority says not one single landlord has been prosecuted since new laws requiring them to install the devices were introduced last October.

But town hall bosses have refuted the claim, explaining the reason the new powers have not been used by enforcement officers is because the threat of legal action on its own has been sufficient incentive to make landlords comply.

The new legislation has made councils responsible for carrying out checks and given them the power to issue fixed penalty fines of up to £5,000.

"The council's failure not to fine a single landlord for not installing smoke alarms is very worrying," said the council's Lib Dem leader Gail Engert. "This new law was passed so councils could act against irresponsible landlords and ensure renters live in safe homes with fire alarms.

"The council should be using the powers they have been given. It is over six months since the legislation came into force. It has had plenty of time to act."

A spokesman for the council said that Haringey was yet to adopt the legislation and was working with other local authorities on a common approach to an agreed fixed penalty charge.

Many properties let by landlords in the borough are homes converted into multiple flats and fire safety and protection is contained in existing legislation for the licensing of such accommodation.

The council spokesman added: "Just because it hasn't prosecuted a landlord since the new legislation was introduced doesn't mean the council is not carrying out enforcement.

"The threat of legal action has been sufficient to get landlords to obey the law and install smoke alarms."

Anna's aiming to be a top banana

SCHOOLGIRL Anna Bauss is bidding to become Top Banana after reaching the final of a national competition for word wizards.

The nine-year-old, who is a pupil at Rhodes Avenue Primary School, in Wood Green is one of 12 finalists in the Bananagrams Challenge.

The popular game, in which youngsters have to re-arrange letters to make as many words as they can, is used by schools to improve literacy skills.

Anna secured a placed in the grand final – to be hosted at the Magic Circle in London next week – after beating 25,000 primary school pupils, first her own classmates and then youngsters from other schools, in a series of online contests.

If she triumphs in the final on April 30, she will win a trophy, a Bananagrams goody bag and £1,000 for her school presented by the inventor of the anagram game Rena Nathanson.

"I am so happy," said Anna. "I love word games and I'm surprised to have reached the final."

Shotgun seizure

A MAN accused of being in possession of a sawn-off shotgun following a routine police vehicle stop in Muswell Hill appeared in court on Monday.

Sharif Bako, 25, from Islington, north London, was charged with having a prohibited firearm when he appeared at Highbury Magistrates' Court.

He was a passenger in a car stopped by police in Muswell Hill Road on Friday night.

The 17-year-old driver, from West Ham, east London, appeared with him and faced charges of possession of a prohibited firearm, dangerous driving, driving without a licence or insurance and failing to stop for police.

Both were remanded in custody.

Tennis players rally round club's charity fundraiser

A TENNIS club will rally again next month to the cause of a cancer charity.

For the second consecutive year, Hanley Tennis Club, in Crouch End Playing Fields, is staging a fundraising event for Dimpleby Cancer Care – a charity providing holistic care for cancer patients set up 50 years ago in memory of broadcaster Richard Dimpleby.

The event, on Sunday, May 8, is open to both the public and club members and includes a friendly tournament between Hanley and Wood Vale tennis clubs, lawn games and afternoon tea, as well as a raffle.

The club is hoping to top the £1,000 it raised last year when journalist Jonathan Dimpleby, one of Mr Dimpleby's sons, presented the trophy to the tournament's winners.

Hornsey and Wood Green MP Catherine West will perform the presentation this year.

Champion: Jonathan Dimpleby, pictured at last year's cancer charity fundraiser with former Hanley Tennis Club chairman Ian Lepper

Warning from coroner follows baby's death

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A CORONER has issued a formal warning over the death of a baby whose mother repeatedly told doctors she needed a caesarean section.

Kristian Jaworski, who was born in North Middlesex University Hospital in Edmonton, in June, died when he was just five days old after his brain was starved of oxygen while doctors tried a prolonged delivery, using forceps and suction.

Doctors persisted with these attempts despite his mother's repeated pleas that she needed a C-section.

Tracey Taylor, of Bowes Road, had been told after the birth of her first son that she would need a caesarean for the delivery of any other children. He was only 5lbs – unusually small for a forceps delivery.

After an inquest, North London coroner Andrew Walker made a regulation 28 order, which warns the Department of Health of risks of future deaths if life-saving caesareans are eschewed in favour of cheaper options.

He cited expert evidence by Royal Berkshire Hospital obstetrician Patrick Bose, who told the inquest that some doctors and midwives could be influenced by the cost of procedures when deciding how to deal with difficult deliveries.

However, a spokesman from North

New guidance: North Middlesex University Hospital, in Edmonton

Middlesex, in Sterling Way, insisted that cost would never influence doctors and medical staff from trying to save the lives of a mother and child.

The hospital's director of medicine Dr Cathy Cale said: "Our team took their decision to continue with the clinical delivery in this case for clinical reasons and would have had no concerns about intervening surgically had they believed this risk was warranted."

When medical interventions failed, doctors rushed Tracey into an operating theatre for an emergency C-section.

Speaking on the Today programme on BBC Radio 4 on Friday morning, she said she had told midwives and doctors at every meeting and consultation throughout her pregnancy that she had been told she would need a C-section.

"When my first child was born, it was quite a traumatic experience," she explained. "I was told while I was still in the delivery suite that I had a narrow birth canal and for any subsequent children I would have to have a caesarean. When I fell pregnant with Kristian, it was something I highlighted from the beginning."

She explained that despite making doctors aware of these factors, she was turned away from the hospital twice.

On the second occasion, she was crying and pleading with them to let her stay in case of any complications.

Her son was eventually delivered by an emergency C-section after what she described as "a prolonged trial of instrumental intervention".

"I feel like I was treated like an over-anxious woman who was just too frightened to give birth – when that was never the terminology I used," she said. "I went in there with a reason. That isn't something a woman would just make up."

Dr Cale stressed that the coroner had not found the hospital trust to have been negligent and added: "We have accepted liability for Kristian's death because we accept we made mistakes."

"As a result of our own detailed investigation, we have drawn up new guidance for all our staff about limiting prolonged instrumental delivery and avoiding the sequential use of instruments. We have also taken steps to ensure that if a mother expresses concerns about her means of delivery that these and the reasons for them are clearly recorded in her notes."

MP's bid to boost rail compensation

RAIL passengers whose journeys are disrupted by delays and cancelled services should receive a bigger share of compensation, says Enfield North MP Joan Ryan.

She introduced a bill in the House of Commons on Wednesday demanding that the £500,000 in compensation train operators receive from Network Rail for power failures and over-running track maintenance should be spent on improving services.

"It is scandalous that the very people most affected by the poor standard of service on offer – tax-paying commuters – end up contributing to train operators' profits out of their own misery," said Ms Ryan.

Boy, three, injured in road accident

POLICE are appealing for witnesses after a three-year-old boy was hurt in a collision in Enfield on Monday night.

The accident happened just before 6pm on the corner of Bullsmoor Lane and Bullsmoor Ride – an area where road safety campaigners are trying to curb the speed and volume of traffic coming off the A10 and the M25.

The toddler was airlifted to hospital, where he was treated for a broken leg.

The driver of the car, a black Honda, stopped at the scene and no arrests have been made.

In it to win it: Saffron Corcoran

Saffron aims for the stars

WILL the next Miss Universe come from Enfield?

That's the question for teenager Saffron Corcoran, who is in the running to be the British entrant in the global beauty pageant.

Saffron, 19, of Bertram Road, is one of 40 women vying for the title.

And she must be in with a chance. Last year she won the Miss Teen Galaxy England title and came runner-up in the global event, which was held in the United States.

"I've been competing in teen beauty pageants since 2012," said the former Bedfordshire school pupil, who is being sponsored by the Tape London nightclub, in Mayfair, where she works as a hostess.

"The finalists will take part in a swimwear photocall, an empowerment day and a fitness day. On the finals night, we will compete in four rounds, three of which are judged. These include an opening round, an interview and swimwear and evening gown parades."

The British finals are being held in Cardiff across the weekend of July 21 to 23 and the winner will be flown to the host city of Miss Universe later this year when contestants from 90 countries will be competing for the coveted crown.

Saffron added: "I believe I can do it, but if I don't win I will try again next year."

Mayor under house arrest (for charity)

By Adrian Colley

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

PEOPLE often say politicians should be locked up.

Now Enfield mayor Patricia Ekechi knows how it feels – although it wasn't so bad as she got sponsored for her pains.

The Upper Edmonton ward councillor spent seven hours in the garden compound at Chase Farm Hospital, raising money for the treatment of dementia.

She said: "I had to shelter from the wind and rain under the canopy. But I really enjoyed it – that's what I wanted to do, to help the charity."

"It was an interesting day. People were coming to me to interview me and I was being called by families and friends and waving through the panels to people outside."

"It's a cause that's very close to my heart. When I was deputy mayor, I used to visit care homes and I found, having been living here for 37 years, that I knew some of the people I was visiting. I couldn't believe my eyes and I hadn't realised that it was so serious."

"I then felt that I understood their suffering, so I felt that I had to raise money for families who are affected."

Chase Farm Charity is trying to raise £120,000 to redevelop the garden at the hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, and create a second stroke and neuro rehabilitation garden for patients.

A number of studies have demonstrated the benefits of therapeutic gardens and horticultural activities for patients with dementia. Gardens also help stroke victims who suffer from depression.

Just over half of the money to complete the gardens has been raised and it is hoped to finish the project in the next few months.

The mayor's spell in solitary has so far raised about £1,500 for the cause and contributions can be made at www.justgiving.com/fundraising/freeEnfieldsmayor

A spell inside: Mayor of Enfield Patricia Ekechi has already raised about £1,500 for Chase Farm Charity

Many happy returns: Jack Bradshaw with his friend Eileen Guy, his two sons and their wives

A ton up for Jack the lad

FRIENDS and family gathered to celebrate a former car maintenance worker's 100th birthday.

Jack Bradstock, a father of two and great-grandfather of four, lived in Dover Road, Edmonton, for 60 years.

He retired at 65 after a career that saw him work in the Tottenham area once he returned from serving in Burma in World War II.

Widower Jack, whose wife Daisy died in 1999, has moved to Cheshunt to share a warden-controlled flat with his friend Eileen Guy, 95.

But he returned to Forty Hill, in Forty Hill, Enfield, for a party in his honour on Saturday and he turned 100 on Tuesday. His son Alan, 72, said: "We had a very nice day at Forty Hall. Dad's a fan of pre-war music and we had his favourite song Rhapsody in Blue by George Gershwin playing."

"He would love to play again – he lost feeling in his hands and hasn't been able to play for about 18 months. He's on at me now telling me to bring his piano round to his new home."

"Dad is now in a wheelchair. He doesn't drink or smoke, but has always been on the go whether it's gardening or playing the piano. I think that's why he's made it to 100."

MALLET-wielding rookies have been turning their hand to a classic British summertime entertainment.

New players are being urged by Enfield Croquet Club to take up a fresh challenge.

The club plays at Bush Hill Park, next to the tennis courts, and in the past fortnight a dozen new faces have attended special sessions.

Brian Dawes, club secretary, says: "It's generally deemed to be a genteel sport and you couldn't argue that the majority of members are of a certain age, but the game is great fun."

Members pay £75 for the season, which runs from April to the end of September.

Mr Dawes adds: "Most people have previously played other sports, whether it's golf or football. It's also played on a competitive basis and we are members of the East Anglian Croquet Federation, so we play fixtures in a league."

"We would love to hear from anyone who wants to play the sport. There is a handicap system, so new players are not at a disadvantage when we play games."

Mr Dawes can be contacted on 020 8366 6005 and the club website can be found at www.enfieldcroquet.org/

Cloudy2Clear Announce Trusted Trader Partnership

Consumer champions Which? have now joined the thousands of customers who recognise that Cloudy2Clear Windows really are a business that you can TRUST. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has received the coveted 'Which? Trusted Trader' status after going through a rigorous accreditation process entirely focussed on customer service.

Group Managing Director Marcus McGee believes that Which? have endorsed Cloudy2Clear's long standing company policy of delivering the highest standards possible at all times. 'Our service is simple. If your double glazing has misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Whilst a number of tradespeople perhaps don't focus on customer care as much as they should do, we make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle.

Locally Cloudy2Clear service the Enfield, Edmonton, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill & Southgate areas and manager Richard Power agrees that this approach is a major factor in his success. 'The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated as both my customers and, obviously a body as nationally important as Which? now recognise.'

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Richard a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

Why Geraldine is getting set for charity fundraiser

By Adrian Colley

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

LESS than a year after triple bypass operation, a grandmother is joining the fight against heart disease by taking on a gruelling ten-kilometre run.

With a new lease of life, Geraldine Ward is hoping to raise funds to help the British Heart Foundation research into the disease, which is he UK's single biggest killer.

The teacher will tackle the Tower of London run on May 11.

Geraldine, 60, of Ravens Close, Enfield, explained: "The prospect of having heart disease never crossed my mind. Even when I started to become increasingly tired and experienced tightness in my chest, I used every excuse to stop me from seeing my GP – I blamed it on working too hard, getting older, and becoming unfit. A keen dancer, I used to leave practice sessions with my hands clutching my chest and struggling to breathe."

Symptoms got worse at Easter last year and she took advice to visit a doctor.

"After tests and referrals, doctors said that I was a walking miracle and shocked that I was still living a relatively normal life," said the mum-of-three.

"With three arteries fully blocked and a fourth 80 per cent blocked, the level of my condition was so severe that I could have had a stroke or major heart attack at any point.

"My life was turned upside down. I was placed on the urgent list for a heart bypass on the same day as my daughter telling me I was going to be a grandma for the first time and as I was rushed into the operating theatre a couple of days later. I tried to block out the thought of not surviving surgery and experiencing the wonders of being a grandma.

"The recovery process was extremely tough. From getting out of bed to completing cardiac rehab, I had to rely on my family's support, the amazing staff at St Bartholomew's Hospital and a lot of self-motivation. I'm taking part in the run with friends and family to give back to the BHF and help fund research that has given me a second chance at life.

"I feel incredibly blessed because if I had put off seeing my doctor for much longer, who knows what would have happened?"

"Recently, I hosted a birthday party and raffle, which raised £2,490 for the BHF and Barnet Cardio Rehab programme.

"It was an amazing feeling to be able to dance for the first time in months."

Digging for victory: Work gets under way on the new pond

Park's new pond is set to offer a wildlife windfall

PALMERS Green is gearing up for a wildlife windfall as volunteers create a nature haven in one of the area's leafy parks.

A digger was busy last Thursday clawing earth out of a hole in Broomfield Park to sculpt an earth bank that will surround a new pond, which is being created.

Timber planters were being installed and they will house plants aimed at attracting wildlife, such as frogs, newts and a whole raft of bird life. Ivor Evans, one of the Friends of Broomfield Park, who are carrying out the work, said: "We want to see herbs, amphibians, newts and the like in the pond. It's at the edge of the orchard we established five years ago. It's a very enclosed area and we hope it will attract wildlife.

"It's about moving away from municipal-type parks, which are limited in species reach, and enhancing the species of all different kinds of wildlife in the park. There are lakes in the park, but they are different to what is happening here.

"There's a lot of planting to be done yet to provide for animals and protect from the wind and there will be benches nearby."

About £5,000 is being spent on the site. The funding includes donations and £3,000 from Enfield Council's Residents' Priority Fund – and work will be continuing for a few weeks yet.

If you want to help out, the friends will be working regularly on site on Wednesday mornings and can be contacted at broomfieldcommunityorchard@gmail.com

You can also turn up to lend a hand this weekend on Saturday morning or Sunday afternoon.

The new pond is under construction between the park's community orchard and the tennis courts.

Controversial bus lane costs drivers

By Adrian Colley

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

THOUSANDS of drivers are being "exploited" for using a new bus lane, it is claimed.

Enfield and Haringey Ukup chairman Nigel Sussman says signs on a busy road should be clearer, so motorists can avoid a £65 charge.

But Enfield Council says drivers paying attention should just stay out of the bus lane.

Mr Sussman claims a "bus lane entrapment" is being run in Southbury Road, catching drivers who are turning left into Baird Road.

As a result of a freedom of information request, Mr Sussman has found out that 5,477 drivers have been fined for using the lane, which runs along Southbury Road and ends not far from traffic lights at the junction with Baird Road, over a period of ten months.

The penalties were introduced in January last year and the figures relate to the penalties issued up to the end of last October.

That's nearly 550 people a month and, if all of the money has been paid, will have raised more than £350,000 for the council.

Mr Sussman added: "It's not the fault of the drivers. This is purely down to the council, which is responsible for signage and road layout.

"The council, instead of reviewing the junction, is using it as a revenue-generating entrapment and it shows a complete disregard for motorists.

"The council has the cheek to raise everyone's council tax and still try to exploit its residents

'Revenue-generating entrapment': Ukup's Nigel Sussman by the bus lane in Southbury Road, Enfield in this way. In effect, it penalises people who turn left into Baird Road. The bus lane ends very close to the traffic lights and many motorists move to the near-side lane in anticipation of turning left.

"I suggest that until the council do something about the situation, drivers should consider it a no left turn into Baird Road."

But Daniel Anderson, cabinet

member for environment, said: "We're firm, but fair, and if you don't drive in a bus lane, you won't get a ticket.

"If you decide to jump a queue, at the expense of other motorists, by driving in a bus lane, you should expect to face the consequences.

"However, if you feel you've been unfairly treated, there is an independent appeals."

Knock-off porn films land man with £5,000 fine and a curfew

A MAN who was caught flogging knock-off porn films online will have to cough up more than £5,000 and has been slapped with a two-month curfew.

Colin Mark Lane, 53, of Eagle Close, Ponders End, was caught by Enfield Council's trading standards team when they were given a tip-off by auction site Ebay that someone from the borough was trying to sell unclassified adult films online.

Members of the team bought some of the films, as a test, and confirmed that the DVDs did contravene the Video Recordings Act 1984 because they were not branded with any age rating.

It transpired that Lane had been burning DVDs made up of compilations of pornography he had on his home computer.

He was then trying to sell on these films.

When officers raided his

'Had to take action': Councillor Daniel Anderson home, they seized 100 reels of film and 400 DVDs.

Lane pleaded guilty at Tottenham Magistrates' Court last month to 12 offences. He was ordered to pay £5,000 towards the council's costs, plus a victim surcharge of £60, and was put under the curfew, which runs for three nights a week, for eight weeks. The films have been confiscated.

Daniel Anderson, the council's cabinet member for environment, said: "Though we're not prudish, there are strict laws governing the copying of all types of films for commercial gain and it's illegal to sell any film, including those containing pornographic material, if they don't have a classification.

"The classification is there for a reason and we have a responsibility to enforce the law.

"Although it's fairly obvious we are not talking about episodes of In The Night Garden or Mr Tumble here, there is a fundamental concern that we do not want young people watching films of an adult nature when it may not be completely clear from the titles what the films show, so we had to take action to prevent this continuing activity."

I was not acting as a spokesman

I FEEL like I have to clarify comments attributed to me regarding the Florence Hayes playground, in Edmonton, ("Restructuring Provokes Fears for Playground", Advertiser, April 13).

For one, I don't know where this playground is, I don't know what goes on there and I don't know about any closure plan for the playground.

When asked what my views on "closures", I made it quite clear that I did not know of any proposed closures to playgrounds or youth centres etc.

In fact, I know that there is a lot of work going on to try and safeguard these areas from the severe cuts that this government has imposed on the local authority.

The hypothetical question I was asked was around what would young people do if there were to be closures of this type and again I said I wasn't aware of any closures, but, hypothetically, young people who frequent these establishments would be affected by the loss of that amenity and maybe spending more time at home playing computer games etc.

It would obviously be a travesty to lose these important facilities that enable young people to get out on the open, or to socialise in youth clubs.

The article, I feel, places me as a spokesman for this area which I am certainly not. I have not heard of or spoken to anyone about closures of parks, youth centres or similar. I am not important enough to be in the know in that regards.

It is true that with the severe cuts to the local authority budget many of the services offered to the community are having to undergo scrutiny.

My personal view is that it is a time that people need to step up and volunteer, especially in youth centres etc.

There are hundreds of people in the borough who volunteer running football teams, Scouts, Guides and playgroups etc, but it is hard nowadays with the pressures on family and working lives.

It is obvious that this government wants to put more emphasis on the people taking up the slack, whether that be in youth or adult services, policing etc. and many other aspects of our daily lives.

I wouldn't want to come across as a spokesman for something I know little about. I hope this clarifies my position in this regard.

Rick Jewell
Hoe Lane,
Enfield

The similarities are obvious, Mr Gilligan

ANDREW Gilligan claims there is no similarity between proposals he objected to in Greenwich and those for Enfield Town ("What's the difference", Advertiser, April 13), saying: "I opposed the Greenwich scheme because it would have funnelled all traffic into the main shopping streets, not out of them...it was the equivalent, in Enfield terms, of closing Cecil Road and funneling all the traffic in both directions into Church Street."

In fact, what he said in his blog was that the Greenwich proposals would "remove traffic from a relatively small part of the centre, but they will impose extra traffic on the rest of the centre and across a far wider area".

Contrary to what Mr Gilligan told your reporter, this is exactly what the situation will be in Cecil Road and surrounding roads.

Mr Gilligan's blog said: "Most options proposed will also devastate Greenwich's bus service, hardly conducive to a car-free future." This is precisely what will happen in Church Street. Would Mr Gilligan accept this level of disruption for bus passengers in Greenwich? No, he complains that "the victims will be local residents" - exactly as in Enfield, except here Mr Gilligan told us that "there will always be winners and losers", just as long as it's not him and his neighbours who will be the losers!

About the Greenwich consultation, he said: "They say some of the pedestrianisation options would reduce overall congestion and pollution, but the people at the exhibition admit that no modelling has in fact been done on how the proposals will affect traffic flows."

Yet, he celebrated the outcomes of the mockery of the A105 consultation conducted, where no traffic modelling was conducted until after Enfield Council had decided the final plans.

What does Mr Gilligan conclude regarding the Greenwich proposals? "Any close examination of the proposals shows them to be damaging, if not indeed unworkable" and "additional traffic congestion" will result. Exactly what we predict in Enfield.

Of most interest to residents is the fact that Mr Gilligan told your reporter that if it was proposed to close Cecil Road and funnel all the traffic into Church Street he would oppose that. Residents may wish to ask Mr Gilligan why he therefore considers it acceptable to close Church Street and funnel all the traffic into Cecil Road.

Linda Miller
Chairwoman, Enfield Town Residents' Association
Raleigh Road,
Enfield

Cecil Road is not suitable

ONE theme seems to dominate the debate about the new cycle scheme in Enfield: are pedestrians, cyclists, motorists and emergency service vehicles going to observe an increased frequency of congestion problems and are Enfield residents going to be substantially inconvenienced, or have safety compromised?

My assertion is that the proposed plans to re-route all traffic away from Church Street on to Cecil Road and surrounding roads is going to produce unacceptable congestion and increase safety risks. I am writing as one voice representing many local residents. We are not willing to be the victims of an ill-conceived, inadequately researched, cycle scheme.

Andrew Gilligan said he would oppose a scheme like the one he rejected in Greenwich. I want to point out that Enfield is proposing one such equivalent scheme and therefore Mr Gilligan should be standing with us and be seen to be rejecting it.

Enfield residents and businesses have already shown a majority decision to reject the proposed cycle lane scheme and it is now time that our voices are heard and this translates into a review of the proposals such that the local community is presented with an alternative scheme that is acceptable, or that the concept is scrapped.

There is a level of arrogance being displayed by senior decision makers that is beyond comprehension. Cecil Road is not a suitable site for the cycle lane scheme and Church Street should not be closed to general traffic.

Jeremy Lindley
Cecil Road,
Enfield

People should learn to share

T. JONES clearly hasn't understood that the aim of the Mini-Holland proposals is to encourage people out of their cars and on to bikes in order to limit the chance of the sort of congestion she came across in Palmers Green ("This is an unpleasant taste of things to come", Opinion, April 6). A cyclist takes up so much less room per person.

Also she needs to divest herself of the belief that Mini-Holland was just a daft idea of a cycling London mayor and a delusional Enfield Council. The funding was provided to the mayor by central government, which even then understood that car journeys needed to be reduced.

As for cyclists' behaviour, it's true that some do behave badly, but so do drivers and pedestrians. Many times I've seen pedestrians saunter across zebra crossings holding up traffic.

The key to changing that sort of truculent behaviour is to develop a sharing culture, rather than the current driver-entitlement culture developed by prioritising the needs of cars over walking and cycling.

David Hughes
Conway Road,
Palmers Green

What's wrong with a cheque?

I REFER to your article about online council tax payment (April 6).

Over the past 15 years, I have been paying my council tax by a monthly cheque sent by post.

I am no longer able to do this. I have to go online or visit my bank or council tax office. This is inconvenient for me. What about those who have no online facility or who cannot easily get to a bank or council office? The elderly or disabled for instance.

The council receives 98 per cent of its council tax - a wonderful record and one to be proud of. But the system which has produced such good results is being changed. It would be no surprise to see collection rates dip this year. As residents scratch their heads and wonder what to do, costs will also increase as a result of enhanced debt collection.

To tinker with a successful system in this way appears to be an own goal.

Surely the council could have given the option to residents to continue paying in their normal way while having the opportunity to change to the new system?

Roman Prychidko

You'll be sadly missed, Jeff

LAST Saturday Enfield lost a leading light - and we lost a very dear friend.

Former council leader and long-standing Bowes ward councillor Jeff Rodin was a man of great intelligence and integrity.

You always knew where you stood with Jeff. If you were fortunate enough to be his friend, you could count on his endless loyalty, charm and wit.

We will miss our family dinners and pub lunches, watching Spurs in the east stand, barbecues and election nights, New Year's Eve parties and howling at the moon. We will never forget Jeff. He really did make a difference and in the end that's what he wanted to do. Jeff - you succeeded mate.

High times: Pupil Daniel Baldwin tries out the new play equipment

A whole Lotto fun

By Adrian Colley

news.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

CHILDREN at an Enfield school are jumping for joy after new play equipment bought with a share of Lottery lolly was unveiled.

George Spicer Primary School has splashed out £22,000 to help youngsters get active and have more fun during break times.

The lion's share of the amount – £12,000 – was contributed by parent-teacher organisation, Friends of George Spicer, with the National Lottery stumping up the remaining £10,000.

The school has nearly 700 pupils split across two sites – in Sketty Road and Kimberley Gardens – and it is the Sketty Road centre where the new play equipment and climbing wall will be used by the 330 older pupils.

Headteacher Hilary Ballantine said: "We love it and the children love it.

"We have equipment where they can turn a knob and they are told to do an activity like dance or jump up and down.

"The older children were a bit jealous of the younger children's equipment on their school site.

"They can hang off bars and have to think carefully how they will traverse things, for example. It's made a big difference to the playground."

With space at a premium, some of the elevated equipment has features underneath which the children can use safely.

And, of course, it has an educational purpose as well.

Ms Ballantine added: "It's an enhancement for the outlook curriculum for physical development."

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Tributes paid after death of former council leader

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

TRIBUTES have been paid to a community champion and former council chief.

Jeff Rodin, who was the leader of Enfield Council between 1994 and 1999 when Labour were in power, died on Saturday morning.

Praising the volunteer, activist and "conviction politician", the current council leader Doug Taylor led the tributes to Mr Rodin.

"Jeff was a highly influential figure who was dedicated to improving the lives of local people and creating a better Enfield," said Mr Taylor.

"He will be fondly remembered by officers and councillors who worked with him during his time in office, and by many people in the borough."

Mr Taylor explained that what set Mr Rodin apart from other local politicians was his passion and determination to create a fairer borough for all residents.

"Jeff cared passionately about doing the right thing and campaigned and worked tirelessly on behalf of the poor, the voiceless and the defenceless," he said.

"He was a conviction politician of the highest order and transformed the lives of thousands of people during his lifetime."

Mr Rodin stepped down from the council in 2010 after representing Bowes ward for 24 years, but continued his community work as a volunteer for Enfield Citizens Advice Bureau and Enfield Community Transport, where he helped out as a driver as well as acting as a trustee and treasurer.

"His passing is an enormous loss to the borough and our thoughts are with his family at this difficult time," Mr Taylor added.

Mr Rodin was born in Hackney in 1950. He grew up in east London and then in Harrow before winning a place at the University of Birmingham in 1968 to study politics and sociology.

He cut his political teeth in the heady world of 1960s student politics and campaigned against

Leading councillor and campaigner:
Jeff Rodin, who died on Saturday

apartheid in South Africa and the Vietnam war.

His long involvement in Enfield political life began in 1979 and he was elected to represent Bowes ward in 1986.

His passion and conviction saw him rise to the top locally. Between 1987 and 1989, he served as the deputy leader of the opposition on Enfield Council and he was leader of the Labour group (in opposition) between 1989 and 1994.

He is survived by his wife Marion, three children and three grandchildren.

Radical shift:
Green candidate Sian Berry is proposing a raft of measures aimed at improving air quality, cutting traffic levels and reining in private rents in the capital

Berry's concern at 'crisis of filthy air'

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE Green Party candidate for mayor has told the Advertiser that air pollution in London is at crisis point and she is determined to deal with it "using every tool" at her disposal.

Sian Berry visited the borough on Friday afternoon to speak to voters in congested Church Street, in Enfield Town.

Over the past year, the Enfield Green Party has raised concerns over the air quality in areas of heavy traffic near the North Circular Road and in Enfield Town.

Ms Berry said: "We have a crisis of filthy air in London which urgently needs addressing with every tool at our disposal. I start from the understanding that we won't reduce pollution without reducing traffic."

Her plans include a workplace parking levy which would be paid by employers for every employee who travels to work by car in London.

While candidates from the other parties have spoken of "retro-fitting" polluting vehicles such as black cabs and double decker buses with cleaner engines, Ms Berry wants a complete ban from central London on the worst offending vehicles.

She explained: "I will bring in car-free Sundays, starting with an expanding area of the West End, and encourage all boroughs to follow suit in their town centres."

'We need to build affordable homes'

THE Liberal Democrat candidate in the mayoral election also highlighted the issue of pollution during a visit to the borough.

Promoting her transport vision for London at Enfield Town railway station yesterday, Caroline Pidgeon told the Advertiser that it was unacceptable that poor air quality led to more than 10,000 early and preventable deaths in London each year – and took the opportunity to talk up alternative ways of getting around the capital.

She explained: "Cycling has more than doubled over the last 10 years. If we make cycling safer and easier, encouraging people out of cars, it provides economic benefits to our town centres and environmental benefits to all."

In Enfield, where there has been strong opposition to cycling plans, Ms Pidgeon acknowledged the need to build a broad cross-section of support for the borough's Mini-Holland scheme.

She said: "We need to ensure local residents and businesses are fully engaged ahead of any plans to ensure community support."

Aside from transport issues, Ms Pidgeon is proposing the retention of the Olympic precept, which Londoners have just stopped

She is also determined to change the congestion charging zone, so that rather than a flat sum for driving into the capital, she would levy "fair charges" for distance travelled by car through a wider area of the city than currently exists.

Ms Berry stressed: "We need a radical shift in the way we get around. That means more trips made on foot and by bike to free up capacity on public transport."

She would also ring-fence funds for specific boroughs to improve their high streets and town centres, making them nicer places to spend time in.

"These will be led by local communities who want to see the benefits of reduced traffic levels," she said. "Each borough would receive a similar level of funding to the current Mini-Hollands."

Ms Berry also outlined plans aimed to combat escalating private rents in the capital.

"I'm a renter myself and I've pledged to set up a London Renters' Union which would automatically represent all 2.3 million private tenants in London," she said.

"Working with existing groups and campaigners, it will be able to help renters organise to rein in private rents and expose lettings agents."

But she wants to go further than this and urges the government to grant City Hall powers over rent in London.

She added: "I would lobby hard for that and I hope the renters' union would be an important part of that campaign."

On the campaign trail: Liberal Democrat mayoral candidate Caroline Pidgeon paying in their council tax bills, to fund the construction of 50,000 council homes.

She added: "We need to start building truly affordable homes. Alongside this, I'd set up a GLA building company to drive forward home building and a state of the art construction academy to train the workforce to build the new homes."

Mayoral Candidates:

- ☐ Sian Berry (Green Party)
- ☐ David Furness (British National Party)
- ☐ George Galloway (Respect)
- ☐ Paul Golding (Britain First)

- ☐ Zac Goldsmith (Conservative Party)

Workplace battleground

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

MEMORABLE for Dolly Parton's catchy 9 to 5 title song, the stage show based on the 1980 film comedy of the same name is at Potters Bar's Wylyotts Theatre next week.

The hilarious satire about female empowerment tells how three office secretaries exact revenge on their sexist and tyrannical boss.

The musical adaptation of the film is being performed by Potters Bar Theatre Company at the Darkes Lane venue for five nights from next Tuesday and includes an afternoon matinee on the Saturday.

Featuring the hit 9 to 5 and new songs written especially for the musical by Parton – one of the original stars of the film – it includes dazzling dance routines. The plot unravels in the secretarial pool of US Corporation Consolidated Industries and the office of its supreme Franklin Hart Jr.

There's put-upon office manager Violet, kept in a subservient position and overlooked for promotion losing out to a younger and far less experienced man; Doralee, an attractive secretary, who has to fight off the advances of her lecherous boss; and Judy, who is recently divorced after her childhood sweetheart cheated on her and is forced to return to work.

After their chauvinist boss tries it on once too often with Doralee, the three decide to get their own back by kidnapping him and subjecting him to a series of indignities.

Fighting back against workplace sexism: Andrea Pollington as Violet, Lorraine Bottomley as Doralee, Sarah Brealey as Julie, with David Bottomley as Franklin Hart Jr

"The musical is about challenging 'institutionalised chauvinism,' but it does it in a humorous way," says director David Macklin. "It may be set 30-odd years ago, but sexism and male domination at work are just as relevant today.

"The character of Violet is widowed and has to work to support her son, like many single-parent mums have to.

"And how many women are overlooked for top jobs because of the 'glass ceiling' and who hasn't heard of a married boss hitting on their secretary?" he added.

MILES AHEAD (15, 100 mins)

THAT there were many shades to musician Miles Davis' life is a given. But what's not, is that a memorable life lived means a memorable biopic made.

Happily then, Hotel Rwanda and Boogie Nights actor Don Cheadle does a sterling job – or numerous jobs – as the co-writer, leading man and co-producer in Miles Ahead, his directorial debut about the late jazz trumpeter's 65 years.

Like Davis' music and the mythology surrounding him, Miles Ahead follows its own rules, swerving the standard cradle-to-grave structure and instead offering up an elegant snapshot of Davis' life in the late 1970s.

Set five years on from his self-induced exit from public life following his pioneering of jazz fusion – and the subsequent gap in releasing new music – Miles Ahead sees him drug-addled and in pain from a chronic hip complaint.

Living alone in a chemically induced stupor, he is taunted by memories of the breakdown of his marriage to muse and dancer Frances Taylor (Emayatzy Corinealdi) some years before.

That the relationship was marred with his infidelity and abuse is neither glossed over nor glamourised, and consequently the portrayal is all the better for it.

Equally plaguing his thoughts are demands from his record label, who are desperate to bring the world another Miles recording.

When wily – and fictional – Rolling Stone journalist Dave Braden (Ewan McGregor) forces his way into Davis' house to get the scoop on a rumoured tape of his latest compositions, the mercurial musician is seething and angrily accompanies him to the record label which, according to Braden, arranged the chat.

Leading light: Don Cheadle as jazz icon Miles Davis

There they meet unscrupulous music executive Harper Hamilton (Michael Stuhlbarg), who sneakily gets his mitts on the recording.

Hamilton is hell-bent on delivering a new Miles record to his fans and, in doing so, netting a handsome profit for the company.

He's also eager to secure Miles' support for his new jazz wonderkid Junior (Lakeith Lee Stanfield), which would also create a healthy and lucrative buzz around him.

Unfortunately for Hamilton, Miles couldn't care less about sales and ingenuities and stops at nothing to get back what is his, taking Dave with him to write up his adventure.

United as they are in the pursuit, buddy movie this ain't. If anything, the distance and cold resentment between Miles and Dave – although there are occasional flashes of camaraderie – adds a pitch-perfect humour to the already whip-smart script.

Told through flashbacks, which are more free flowing than formulaic, and sharp performances, Miles Ahead is a stylish and instructive sideways glance at the late legend's life, that like all good things, leaves you wanting more.

IDYLIC VILLAGE LIFE FOR COMMUTERS

During my 32 years as an estate agent, I have continually received enquiries from people in North London looking to escape to the country in search of peace and quiet and a sense of community that can come with village life. However, the reality can often be that these locations are too far from transport links, particularly railway stations and communities are too small or too spread out to support local services such as a shop or public house.

However, for all these people, I am delighted to be able to offer for sale this charming period semi-detached cottage, Listed Grade II, situated in the historic village of THUNDRIDGE, just 1 mile from the A10 and 2.4 miles from Ware station (London's Liverpool Street, Tottenham Hale and Stratford). Thundridge is a small but thriving village with a strong community, incorporating a popular JMI school and unusually nowadays, a village store and tea room. There are 3 good pubs, access to numerous countryside walks and Hanbury Manor Hotel and Country Club with PGA Championship golf course, Leisure facilities and Spa is under a mile.

If you would like to discuss visiting this wonderful home, please call me, Richard Wells on 07717 357 135 or visit my website for more information. www.richardhwells.co.uk

STENNETT PROPERTIES

ESTATE AGENTS & SOLICITORS

STAPLETON HALL ROAD N4 £1,200,000

Unique opportunity to purchase this spacious, five bedrooms, three receptions, mid-terrace house. The property is in need of modernisation. Early viewing recommended.

Kathy & Edith's story

Stennett Estate Agents and Solicitors specialise in selling and renting homes for elderly persons in residential or nursing care. The firm tackles problems concerning treatment of property by the Local Authority in the means test for permanent care home provision.

We advised Edith and her sister Kathy recently. She was the sole owner of a large house in Enfield. She lived there with Kathy. Edith moved into a care home permanently. The Local Authority took on the responsibility for paying the care fees. This is because Edith had little by way of savings and the value of the house was disregarded as capital available to pay for her care.

A few years later Edith decided to sell her home. The house was too big for Kathy to live in and maintain. Kathy wanted to move to a small bungalow nearer to Edith.

However a Local Authority officer, when carrying out a financial assessment, said to Edith that if she sold the house all the sale proceeds would be needed to pay for her care. The officer's argument was the property disregard rule only applies to the original property and once it has been sold the sale proceeds could be taken into account in the financial assessment.

A tearful Kathy and an angry Edith turned to us for advice. We wrote to the Local Authority referring to statutory guidelines. We demanded and to the Council's credit, obtained an immediate response confirming that in respect to Edith, the proceeds from the sale would be disregarded and not used to pay for her care.

A relieved Edith engaged Stennett Estate Agents to sell the property and within 7 days of listing we found a suitable buyer willing to pay the asking price. Placing a property with Stennett Estate Agents and Solicitors ensure

- A trusted service that put the seller's interest first
- Full estate agent services including listing through Rightmove and Zoopla
- You need just one phone number to speak to your estate agent and solicitor.

The stuff legends are made of

By Matt Kimberley

IN the history of mid-life updates, this is possibly the smallest you'll ever have seen. No cosmetic revisions here – not even new alloy wheel designs. The only mechanical difference is a new exhaust system with lower back pressure and a 5.8kg weight saving.

Performance-wise, you'll have noticed the name is now Cupra 290 – and true to form it has 10bhp more than the old one. A tweak in the engine management software delivers the nominal extra go, which comes hand-in-hand with a wider peak torque band. The full 258lb/ft is now put down between 1,700rpm and 5,800rpm, 50 and 500rpm improvements at either end.

There's also phone-pairing software, so whatever your phone, it should hook up to the system with a degree of internet connectivity.

Nothing changes with the appearance because Seat has hit on a winning formula. The Leon is its best-selling car and it's the first real international sales barnstormer the company has had this decade. It ain't broke, so there's no point fixing it. The change is the boot badge upgrade, to Cupra 290.

From right now you can get the 290 in three-door (and, most lovely) SC, do-it-all five-door hatch and more practical ST estate shapes. The ST has a couple of hundred litres more boot space than the 380-litre tub shared by the other two.

There's adequate rear legroom for passengers, but it's not the airiest place for them to be.

If there was a black mark, it would be on the white seat trim because it's the sort of thing that will get dirty all too easily.

Seat hasn't taken the chance to enliven the cabin, so it stays one of the least imaginative in the hot-hatch clique. The seats might be well-shaped and supportive, but a few Cupra logos and a flat-bottomed steering wheel aren't really enough any more.

But hit the road and that's forgotten. The free-revving 2.0-litre engine masters everyday driving with barely 20 per cent of its ability. Use a bit more right boot and fast turbo response gives you astonishing overtaking punch. Keep the throttle pinned on your friendly local private airfield and it'll get to the 155mph limiter with ease. It's a monster.

It changes direction like a rogue firework, even under power, if you're skilled enough to handle it that way. The VAQ slip-limiting system is as good now as it always was – superb.

Be aware, however. It's much firmer on the track-biased Michelin Pilot Cup 2 tyres, which you can add as options. The standard Continentals are much more forgiving.

With the Cupra 265 confined to the bin (almost no one bought one), the entry point is now the full-fat and beautiful SC. The highest-spec Focus ST is more than £2,000 cheaper (before haggling), but it's not as accomplished a motor.

On the other hand, a Civic Type R is more expensive and you get less equipment to show for it.

The Leon could be a bit better equipped, as evidenced by the now-huge options list, but everything you really want is on the car already.

In terms of value, it splits the pack, but it depends what each buyer is actually looking or hoping for. The flagship Cupra still isn't that common a sight in the UK, but owners are the type who exchange a nod and a wave.

It's like a secret shared between two strangers. It's a hell of a car and those who've bought one know exactly why. The Cupra 290, like the 280 before it, is part of modern hot-hatch legend – if only within the scene itself.

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.

2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.

3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

(a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;

(b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or

(c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.

5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.

8. All gross advertising rates (except classified line and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.

(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.

(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect of an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers

Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies.

Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.

Holiday & Travel Category

All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.

Data Protection

The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors.

Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.

Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.

2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.

To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.

3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:

- (a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
- (b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
- (c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.

4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.

5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.

6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.

7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.

8. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.

9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.

10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.

11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.

12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.

13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.

(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.

(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.

14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.

15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.

16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.

17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers
Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies.

Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.

Holiday & Travel Category
All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.

Data Protection
The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors.

Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.

Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

SUPER SPURS CRUSH STOKE

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR delivered a real statement of their Premier League title credentials on Monday night by romping to a 4-0 victory at Stoke City to close the gap on table-topping Leicester City to five points.

Spurs had seen Leicester drop two points the previous day as they were held to a 2-2 draw by West Ham United, and they took full advantage of their opportunity to reduce their deficit by producing an outstanding display, with Harry Kane and Dele Alli both scoring twice in a crushing triumph.

With just four matches remaining, Tottenham still face a tough task if they are to overhaul the surprise leaders, but Kane insists there is genuine belief that they can win the title.

"We are not going anywhere," he said. "If we keep playing like that, then there are not many teams who will beat us. We think we can do it, otherwise there is not much point being involved."

"Leicester are still in the driving seat, being five points ahead, but there are four games left and we've reduced the gap. That's all we could have done."

"Stoke is a tough place to go to and to win in the manner we did shows what sort of team we are. We scored four, but could have had six or seven. It is one of our best performances all season but that's what we can do. Leicester dropped points and I had been itching to play."

"We hardly put a foot wrong. Every single one of us put in a good performance, and we have done for a while now."

Tottenham dominated the match from the start and Kane broke the

Keeping the faith: Harry Kane still believes Tottenham Hotspur can win the Premier League title deadlock with a fine strike after just nine minutes.

Christian Eriksen hit the bar prior to the interval, but it was in the closing stages of the contest that the visitors really came to the fore – with Alli scoring twice in addition to an astonishing miss which saw him hit the post with the goal at his mercy, while Kane netted again to grab his 24th league goal of the season.

And head coach Mauricio Pochettino was unsurprisingly full of praise for the efforts of his players.

"The most important thing is that the performance we showed was perfect," he said. "It was a big signal that we are there waiting and fighting."

"The players deserve full credit for this game because it was difficult from the beginning. We are still fighting. Our dream is to fight and put pressure on Leicester."

"It was one of the performances that you feel more proud of because the players played with character to deal with the pressure to try to catch Leicester. It is never easy, but we showed big character."

"We showed hunger and passion and we showed we enjoy our game. It's fantastic to work with them every day. I feel fantastic and very happy because I have a squad that feels the passion for the game and they deserve the praise and full credit."

Duo express their pride after being nominated for awards

HARRY KANE and Dele Alli have expressed their pride after being nominated for this season's Professional Footballers' Association awards.

The Tottenham Hotspur duo were included when the shortlists for the annual prizes were named last week, with Kane nominated for both the Player of the Year and the Young Player of the Year – which he won last season – and Alli also in contention for the Young Player of the Year award.

"It's nice to be up for both awards again," said Kane, who is currently the leading scorer in the Premier League with 22 goals. "It's a good achievement and certainly shows you are doing something right."

"It's always an honour to be nominated by the PFA because it's your fellow professionals who have voted and they have that understanding of the game."

"Dele has had a great season so it's no surprise to see him nominated as well. It's great to have a couple of Spurs lads in the running."

Alli, who turned 20 last week, has enjoyed a spectacular first season in the Premier League following his move from MK Dons last summer, in addition to breaking into the England team.

"It's a great feeling to be nominated," he said. "It's been a fantastic season for the team and for me personally as well."

"We have a lot of younger players and to play how we have this season is a great credit not just to the team but to the gaffer and the staff here."

"To have a PFA nomination is great news for me. It's a huge award and a real honour to be nominated, and if I was to win it's another bonus for this season."

"It's a big award, especially with the number of youngsters that there are in this team and in the Premier League. There have been a lot of young players breaking through, so for me to be nominated is a great feeling."

Alli added: "I have had a good season, but I still have a lot to learn and a lot to improve on. I have to give a lot of thanks to the manager and the staff for putting their trust in me and helping me to improve."

The awards will be handed out in a ceremony in central London on Sunday evening.

Another victory for the in-form Skolars

THE London Skolars maintained their excellent run of form by securing a 31-24 victory at North Wales Crusaders in rugby league's Kingstone Press Championship One on Sunday.

Having endured a difficult start to the campaign, the Skolars have now won their past four matches in all competitions and this latest triumph was their first ever away victory against the Crusaders.

Sam Nash led the way by scoring two tries, while Dave Williams, Alex Walker, Ryan Chester and Israel Eliab also crossed the line.

"We started really well and had the upper hand early on, so it was good to convert our chances," Nash said. "When we're at our best we can compete against anyone. We just need to make sure we're doing that for 80 minutes."

"There is a great feeling among the group at the moment. Everyone's buying into what we're doing, but we're not getting too carried away. We've got a tough game at home this weekend against Coventry and our focus is already on that game."

The match also saw Jy-mel Coleman produce an impressive performance in his first appearance since completing his return to the club last week.

The younger brother of head coach Jermaine Coleman, he had previously played 32 times for the club between 2009 and 2011.

"Jy-Mel will be a fantastic addition to the squad," said director of rugby Mark Croston. "We are playing well at the moment and still have a long way to go as a squad."

"Jy-Mel will help bring the best out of the players around him and I am very excited to see him and Jermaine reunited on the playing field."
